Premier Coal launches new Community Support Program

Premier Coal has launched a new Community Support Program offering financial and in-kind assistance for locally-based projects.

One-off grants of up to $5,000 and the provision of materials and labour are available to support initiatives that enhance the economic, social, and environmental well-being of the local community.

“Through our Community Support Program, we have the opportunity to provide much needed funding to initiatives with the potential to make a genuine and positive difference to Collie and the surrounding region,” said Glenn Burlinson, Premier Coal General Manager.

“With the introduction of our new online application process, we are making it easier for community groups to plan and apply for potential funding.”

Community Support Program funds will be allocated twice a year, with applications for the first round of funding now open and set to close on 28 February 2017.

“Premier Coal has always played a key role in financially supporting the improvement of local services and projects within the local region,” said Mr Burlinson.

“We look forward to announcing the first round of recipients early next year.”

Detailed guidelines and an application form can be found at Premier Coal’s new-look website www.premiercoal.com.au.
